WILLIAM GRANT COOK

HIS ANCESTORS

AND DESCENDANTS

W. G. Cook

PREFACE

With the wish that some of the life history of my father, Ossian Cook, and my mother, Rhoda Cook, should be known to future generations, this work was undertaken.

I believe a knowledge of the background of a family to be a factor in character building. That descendants will try, not only to keep the record clean, but to add to it, if possible.

I believe that loyalty should be one of the guiding forces of a family tradition.

It was my father's character that inspired me to work out what family history is to be found in the following pages.

It has taken years of research, which has given me pleasure in the doing, and my hope is, that many of the descendants will be interested in the work, and will continue it.

INTRODUCTION

The Chinese have a saying - "To forget one's ancestors is to be a brook without a source, a tree without a root."

Macauley wrote - "Any people who are indifferent to the noble achievements of remote ancestors are not likely to achieve anything worthy to be remembered by their descendants."

Always remember your ancestors were real, live people, with their joys and sorrows, their dreams, their romances, their plans, their successes and mistakes, and with their accumulated experiences, a part of the great human history of the world; shall they be forgotten and unrecorded?

"Whoso never look backward to their ancestors, will not look forward to posterity."

Burke says - "The idea of a liberal descent inspires us with a habitual sense of native dignity, which prevents that upstart insolence almost always adhering to and disgracing those who are the first acquirers of any distinction."

We all have the same number of grandmothers and grandfathers, BUT can we name them?

Savage, dean of American genealogists, once wrote, "Nineteen twentieths of the people of New England in 1775 were descendants of those found there in 1692, and probably seven-eighteenths of them were offspring of the settlers before 1642."

"Of our ancestors, no more than forty-eight really count, so far as your hereditary traits are concerned," says Professor C. H. Danforth of Stanford University. "It used to be thought that all your ancestors in any generation contributed about equally to your heredity, but now it appears that on account of human chromsomes, at least one grand parent of the sixth generation back, contributed nothing whatever, and may as well not have existed, so far as direct heredity is concerned."

COOK
SECTION

FRANCIS COOKE (1024)
d.1663.

A member of the family of Cooke of the Parish of Blyth, York and Nottingham, England. He was the grandson of Sir Anthony Cooke who was called "the most learned man of his time," by Galton in his "Hereditary Genius."

Francis became one of the "Mayflower Pilgrims," and was the seventeenth signer of the Compact which was made on board ship, 1620.

Married
at Leyden, Holland, June 20 or July 4, 1603, Hester Mahieu, sister of Marie Mahieu, who m. Jean de la Noye, father of Philippe De La Noye, the progenitor of the Delano family in America. She d. between 1666 and 1675.

Their dau., Elizabeth, was an ancestress of President William Howard Taft.

CALEB COOKE (256)
b. Mar. 29, 1651.

He lived at Rocky Nook as did his grandfather, Francis. As a soldier he was picked by Col. Church to watch and if possible, kill the Indian chief, King Philip. When the chance came Cooke snapped his gun, but it missed fire. He then bade the Indian with him to fire, and the mighty chieftain was instantly killed. This gun was kept in the family for several generations. He was known in after years as the friend and companion of Capt. Church in all of his campaigns.

Married
at Plymouth, Mass., 1682, June--.

CAPT. JOHN COOKE (32)
b. Plymouth, Mass., Sept. 3, 1735/36-d. Claremont, N.H., buried in West Claremont Churchyard, gravestone reads-d. Feb. 8, 1810, aged 75 years.

Capt. John Cooke moved from Norton, Mass., about 1779, with his wife, who was a Miss Godfrey of Taunton, Mass., and five children. He bought the tavernstand and a large and valuable meadow farm on the River Road, about midway between the present village of Claremont and Windsor, Vt. This farm was known as the Godfrey-Cooke place for over a hundred years. It is now owned by Erastus Reed.

The old Tavern House was on the west side of the Highway, and there it stood until 1858. After the death of Mr. Cooke, he was succeeded by his two sons, George and Godfrey, and under their management this tavern was famous and was said to have been the best kept on the road between Keene and Haverhill.

In June 1825, General Lafayette, on his tour through New England, partook of some choice wine at the Cooke Tavern, where a large number of Dartmouth College students had gathered to meet him.

It was here that Paran Stevens, the famous American hotel proprietor and manager, is said to have received his first lessons in hotel keeping, under the direction of his uncle, Godfrey Cooke.

There is a family tradition that a bushel of Continental money changed hands when the Old Tavern was sold.

John Cooke (1735-1810), served as ensign and lieutenant in Capt. Macy Williams' Company, Colonel Timothy Walker's Regiment of Bristol County (Mass.) Militia, 1772.

Married
at Norton, Mass., Mar. 22, 1759, Mary (Molly) Godfrey (33).

Children (all b. at Norton, Mass., except the youngest, Godrey):

1-Jane, b. Jan. 12, 1760-d. Lyme, N.H., July 22, 1812.
2-Matilda, b. May 12, 1761-d. Claremont, N.H., Apr. 3, 1826; m. Ebenezer Brewer; m. 2d, Col. Josiah Stevens (parents of Paran, the hotel man).
3-Paul, b. Jan. 1, 1763-d. Northfield, N.H., Jan. 3, 1817.
4-May, b. Apr. 26, 1766-d. Northfield, July 4, 1844.
5-Rachel, b. Apr. 8, 1769-d. Claremont, Dec. 16, 1827.
6-Rhoda, b. --- d. Claremont, Feb. 1796.
7-John, b. Sept. 11, 1771-d. Lyme, N.H., Aug. 10, 1785.
8-George, b June 29, 1773-d. Cornish, N.H., Oct. 29, 1850.
9-Nancy, b. Aug. 23, 1775-d. Norton, Jan. 23, 1777.
10-Nathaniel (below).
11-Godfrey, b. Claremont, N.H., July 22, 1781-d. Claremont, Apr. 5, 1849; m. Abigail Hubbard.

There were five sons and six daughters, with a difference of twenty-two years between the oldest and the youngest.

For further material on the American Revolution service of John Cooke, see the Lineage Books of the Daughters of the American Revolution, lineage numbers 14206 and 18067, for Miss Mary Elizabeth Partridge and Mrs. Mary Wilson Putnam Long.

Material received from W. N. Goddard shows that George Cooke, m. Tamasin Wilson. Laura A. Cooke m. Hiram Putnam, and their dau., Mary Wilson, m. George F. Long. Godfrey Cooke m. Abigail Hubbard, and Mary E. Cooke, m. Edward A. Partridge, and their dau., Mary E., is the D.A.R. No.14206.

There seems to be a slight discrepancy in the birth dates of Capt. John Cooke and Mary Godfrey, his wife. This may be due to confusion of birth with baptismal record, an error, or the change in calender. The tombstones do not give their birthdates.

NATHANIEL COOKE (16)
b. Norton, Mass., Jan. 9, 1779-d. Claremont, N.H., Jan. 23, 1852.

Resided at Claremont.

Married
Margaret Grannis (17).

Children:
1-John Godfrey (below).
2-William.

JOHN GODFREY COOK (8)
b. Claremont, N.H., Feb. 1, 1802-d. Oshkosh, Wis., Apr. 27, 1867. Buried in the Riverside Cemetery, Oshkosh.

John Godfrey was the first to spell his name Cook. He resided at Claremont, N.H., until 1824, when he followed Sarah Andrews to Shipton, Canada, where they were married. Removed to Stark County, Ohio, 1838, then in 1846, to Massillon, where they resided until Sarah's death in 1852. By trade he was a cloth-dresser and had charge of the woolen mills at Massillon.

After the death of his wife, he moved to Chicago, and from there to Oshkosh, Wis. His son, Ossian, had preceded him, and together they opened a shoe store.

An old resident of Oshkosh once told the compiler that John Godfrey had the sweetest disposition of anyone he had ever known. However, he disliked tobacco very much, and would leave the store if a customer persisted in smoking.

Allen Bruce Cook, as a little boy of eight years knew his grandfather, and often said he was the one person in the world who could calm him when he was in trouble. The old gentleman would take him walking and would show him the beautiful side of life.

John Godfrey was a great Bible student and could quote it freely. He was a Universalist and could argue anyone off his feet.

OSSIAN COOK (4)

b. Shipton, Canada, Feb. 11, 1832-d.Oshkosh, Wis., July 21, 1905. Buried in Riverside Cemetery.

Ossian Cook, thought born in Canada, was brought into Ohio by his parents when he was six years old. Wayne County, Ohio, was at that time little better than an explored wilderness. When he was twelve, the family settled in Stark County, Ohio. Here he gained a rudimentary education, then attended high school at Massillon.

As his father possessed but small financial resources, Ossian obtained employment as a book-keeper in the collector's office of the company operating the Ohio and Erie Canal; he studied at night.Leaving school, he determined to learn a trade. As an opportunity presented itself for him to learn the trade of shoemaking, he grasped it and set about making himself a master of the trade. He became a good workman, and after a time moved to Chicago. Here he became foreman in the shoe shop of J. T. Jewett. This was in 1850, when he was eighteen years of age, and was probably the youngest workman in the shop. He remained with Mr. Jewett until 1854. In 1855, he married and moved to Oshkosh, Wis., where he was one of the early settlers. With his father, he began a custom-made boot business. On account of the disastrous panic of 1857, he had to make an assignment, but, voluntarily made up the loss to his creditors at a later date. He used to tell how at the time he had no money, he traded his boots for wood, potatoes, flour, or what have you.

In 1859, with some other Oshkosh men, he went to "Pike's Peak" and their slogan was "Pike's Peak or Bust!" The journey was made by ox-team and after three months of tedious travel, they arrived. The prime reason for the trip was the recovery of health, the secondary, the search for gold. The party walked right over the Cripple Creek District, and the amount of gold he brought back, when melted down into one piece was the size of a thimble, but his recovered health and experience could not have been bought anywhere for any price.

He had returned to Oshkosh in the fall of 1859, and in January 1860, he went into partnership with his wife's brother, James A. Day, who was burning lime, forming the firm of James A. Day & Co. For many years, his job was the boating of cargoes of sand, wood and limestone with the schooner the "S. B. Paige," which under his captaincy was made famous for speed. At this time, he used to stump all the men by lifting a heavy anchor off the ground and raising it above his head. He had the knack and the strength, although he was not a large man.

The business was successful from the outset and and soon grew to large proportions. Owing to the retirement in 1874 of Mr. Day due to ill health, this firm was succeeded by the Cook, Brown & Co., the new members being R. C. Brown and F. E. Waite. The latter was Ossian's step-son, the child of Rhoda Day by her first husband, Thomas Waite. In 1887, B. F. Carter, the owner of a tract of limestone land at Clifton, across Lake Winnebago, entered the firm, which was then incorporated as the Cook & Brown Lime Company with Ossian Cook as president.

In 1884, Ossian was instrumental in organizing the Fox River Sewer Pipe Company, which was chartered the same year and of which he became president; this in 1888, became the Northwestern Sewer Pipe Company. He was also one of the prime movers in the incorporation of the Western Lime & Cement Company of Milwaukee, and was a director until the time of his death.

Mr. Cook made some valuable real estate investments, one being that of the corner lot and building known in the seventies as The Wolcott Block. He changed the name to the Cook Block, by which name it was still known in 1937. This is acceded to be the most valuable business block in Oshkosh. In 1922 the heirs sold this property for $150,000 cash, the highest price ever to have been paid for any Oshkosh property.

As a young man, Ossian served with the voluntary fire company, helping to pull by man-power, the fire apparatus, without pay. He served as chairman of the first committee which organized the paid fire department.

Politically, Mr. Cook was a Republican, but in no sense was he a politician, altho he served as alderman for many years and one time, by request, ran for mayor on this ticket. Due to the split in Republican ranks by the Green-Backers, Mr. Cook was defeated. As alderman, he was a prime mover in the cause of widening lower Main Street after one of the city fires. He was also a prime mover in having the Fox River Line established.

From a personal point of view, Ossian Cook had a wonderful memory, was a great reader and extremely well posted on all subjects. He read mainly autobiography, biography, and history. He was a liberal thinker and a man of sterling character. His word was as good as his bond. A few incidents in his life will illustrate this. He built a tower, as an addition to the residence at 183 Church Street. This was to have oak panelled walls and a stairway (the original house is shown in an illustration in the History of Winnebago County, Wisconsin, and the Northwest). As the work progressed, he inquired as to whether the cost was not exceeding that specified in the contract. The contractor told him that it would exceed it by $1000. Ossian paid the difference.

Another incident is recalled by his son, the compiler. When he first went to work in his father's office, a promoter for a new building and loan association called on Ossian Cook and a number of people came in to hear his proposals. Ossian was not paying much attention to the recital until he heard this promoter promise a 20% guaranteed return. He immediately turned on the man with the statement that such a thing could not be done unless it was stolen from someone else. The man tried to explain, but Ossian said it could not be honestly done and he did not care to hear any more. The company was formed and operated some eight years, only to fail with much loss and scandal.

After retirement, Mr. Cook traveled extensively and spent a great deal of time in California and Florida. He also built a steam yacht which he named for his daughter, Jessie. He gave his friends a great deal of pleasure with this boat. Always loving nature, he surrounded himself with beauty whenever possible. First he built a cottage with Dr. L. Libby on Libby's Point. Later he built a cottage at Stony Beach. This was the locality in which Ossian had fished when first settling at Oshkosh. Each fall he would catch a tub-full of black bass with a trolling hook. These Mrs. Cook would salt down for winter use. This Stony Beach property was willed by Mrs. Cook to her grandchildren, Ossian and Helen Cook, who later sold it to the compiler. He enlarged it by acquiring the adjoining property from Thomas Morgan.

Ossian Cook's great ambition seemed to be the giving to his family a better than fighting chance to overcome the vicissitudes of life. He was more than generous with his step-son, Frederic E. Waite. At the very beginning, he insisted that all of the Waite estate, some $5,000, be turned over to him. After the son had spent all this, Mr. Cook found a job for him, and then took him into his own business and was extremely generous with him.

All the way, his life was a splendid example of that of the self-made man. He always wore a beard which before it turned white, was sandy. He had grey eyes, small hands and feet, broad shoulders, and a big chest. He always referred to the chest as "the boiler of the body-- give it plenty of Steam." He was also mechanically clever.

Due to an injury received years before when superintending the installation of new kilns at Grimes, after the destruction of the old ones by fire, the last four years of his life were very painful. A growth at the base of his spine prevented his sitting at all for three years. Up until the week of his death, he would arise from his bed and while supporting himself by his hands, cheerfully sing and ask others to join him. All this time, his pain was almost unbearable. He was a soldier thru it all and showed this great courage all thru his illness.

When he died, the flags in the city of Oshkosh flew at half-mast in honor of his service to the city. Ossian Cook was one of the most highly respected men in the City of Oshkosh, and was intimately connected with its progress. He was much more prominent than many of the biographical sketches which have been published would indicate.

Married
in Franklin Co., N.Y., Jan. 1, 1855, Rhoda (Day) Waite (5).

Children (all b. Oshkosh, Wis.):
1-Ada Anna, b. Nov. 4, 1855-d. Jan. 20, 1868.
2-Charles Frank, b. Aug. 18, 1857-d. Dec. 26, 1857.
3-Allen Bruce, b. Oct. 31, 1858-d. San Diego, Calif., 1929, where he was cremated. His name, however, appears on the Cook family monument in Riverside Cemetery, Oshkosh.

Allen started in the millinery business at Oshkosh, and even spent some time in Chicago with Keith & Co. He returned to Oshkosh and remained there until the Cook & Brown Lime Co. opened a branch in Chicago. He then went again to Chicago and took charge of the distributing plant on North Avenue. He was instrumental in the forming of the Wisconsin Lime & Cement Company, and later became its president. He also was an organizer of the Warwick Construction Company. He helped organize the Southern Fire Brick & Clay Company, and when this concern was purchased by the Thomas Moulding Company, he went with the U.S. Gypsum Company as city sales manager. After his retirement in 1910, he settled at San Diego, California.

After his death, his daughter, Ruth, received a letter in which the writer said the following:

"You know, Ruth, the longer I live the more I realize that your father was right when he said, 'Courage to face the battle field of life, was a thing we must all strive for.' He surely practised what he preached, and was an inspiration to us all each day.

I have wished many times during these years, that I could go to him for some of his wise counsel and ideas. You, too, must miss that; but you are blessed with the love of a wonderful man, which would be a great comfort to your father, I know. Who knows but what that was his way of caring for your needs when he was called from you."

b. Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 18, 1886; his second name Grant, was in honor of an old friend of his father.

William Grant was educated in the Public Ward School and at the Oshkosh Normal School. As he was anxious to get started in business, he left school and became book-keeper for the Cook & Brown Lime Company in 1886. From 1901 to 1908, he was treasurer of the Southern Fire Brick and Clay Company, and made his home at Chicago. Then from 1908 to 1923, he was with J. Roland Kay, Inc. (foreign advertising service) as secretary and treasurer. Due to differences in ideas with regard to proper fiscal policies, he resigned in 1925, only to see that firm fail a fews years later.

During the period, 1906-20, he acted as president and treasurer of the Ossian Cook Company which handled the Cook Block at Oshkosh and other of his father's properties. This was sold in 1920, and the proceeds divided among the heirs, some seven sixteenths of it being given to Jessie Andrews (Cook) Boardman.

Starting with a trip in 1893 to the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, the compiler has since visited practically every state in the Union, and has made the trip around the world. Some of these trips were impelled by business, others by pleasure.

Mrs. Jeannette Cook has been a very constant travelling companion. Together they visited Yellow Stone Park in 1904. In 1912, Mr. Cook visited England and France. Then in 1917, accompanied by Mrs. Cook, Gordon and Jack, he went down the Mississippi River from St.Louis to New Orleans without change of Steamer. Another such trip was made by packet steamer from St.Louis up the Tennessee River to Alabama.

In 1920, with Mrs. Cook, he visited the West Indies, the Panama Canal, and Costa Rica. Having seen some of the wonders away from home, he decided in 1921 to see a little more of the United States. So with Mrs. Cook, Gordon and Jack, he made the trip to California, visiting the Grand Canyon and Yosemite Park.

In 1922, Niagara and the Thousand Islands sounded alluring, so with Mrs. Cook, he went east to The Falls, then down the St. Lawrence River. After his retirement in 1925, Mr. Cook spent some five and a half months at Stony Beach, Oshkosh, and while there improved the two acres of land.

In 1929, he made his first overland trip by auto to California. Since then he has made seven trips from Chicago to California and back. He completed his auto tour of the American Continent by driving to Florida in 1933.

In 1930 and 1931, with Mrs. Cook, he made the "Round the World Cruise," visiting Hawaii, Japan, China, The Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Egypt, Europe, England and Scotland.

In 1935, Mr. and Mrs. Cook visited Mexico City. Since that time, they have made no extended trips, but have summered at Stony Beach, Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and have wintered at San Diego where they built a place at 3868 Henry Street. When passing through Chicago, they stop in Evanston.

In general, the compiler is a liberal in religious belief, and he served the Chicago Unity Church as trustee from 1919 to 1925.

Having entered the Masonic order when he became twenty-one years old, he is a Blue Lodge and Royal Arch Mason.

As he enjoys a game of golf, he became a charter member of the Ridgemore Country Club of Chicago and is also a member of the Oshkosh Country Club.

In national political policy, he is a Republican.

Married
at Milwaukee, Wis., Apr. 25, 1893, Letitia Gertrude Laflin (L3--See the Laflin section for her genealogy).

Married
2d, at Chicago, Ill., Aug. 21, 1900, Jeannette Southworth Bacon (3--See the Bacon section for her genealogy).

For the descendants of William Grant Cook, see pages 159-162.

JAMES ALLEN (704)
b. Wrentham, Co. Suffolk, Eng., 1610-d.Mass., 1675.

He came to Charlestown, Mass., 1635, with his nephew or uncle, Rev. John Allen of Dedham, Mass., who is said to have descended from William Allen who was burned at Walsingham, Eng., in 1555, because he refused to follow the Cross in a procession and because he denied his alliance to the Roman Catholic Church (see Fox's Book of Martyrs).

James Allen became one of the fifteen proprietors of Medfield, Mass., in 1642, and took the freeman's oath in 1647. He drew his house lot in Medfield for land on South Street near "Mr. Rhodes House." In 1655, he received six acres in the north part of town founded on the west by Stony Winter Brook. Among the Medfield records we find mention of the "Law Books" which were distributed among the proprietors, and one book was set apart for the use of John Turner, Joseph Clark, James Allin, and Isaac Cheney.

During King Philip's War, his house, on which he had been assessed £20, was burned as were those of his sons, James and William, His son, Joseph, had luck, as the Indians built their incendiary fire on a trap door and the fire merely burned through and dropped into the cellar.

Altho she had no formal education, she was a remarkable woman. She was a regular cut-up as a girl. Her father wan an old time Methodist and with him Sunday commenced at sundown Saturday night and did not let up until sunrise Monday, and there should be no smiled passed around. His daughter, Rhoda, broke over the traces quite often.

Rhoda started her own children in the Methodist Church, finally ending up in the Universalist, passing through the Congregational.

She was a woman of very strong character, and was very active until her last illness, which lasted only two weeks. She had an intense dislike for being waited upon, and believing during her illness that even ifshe recovered she might be helpless, she made no effort whatsoever to get well. The doctor said that if she had made any kind of a fight, she wouldhave gotten well.

She became a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and her application was signed by Mary Margaretta Sawyer Manning the president general, Dec. 6, 1899. Her national number was 30,238.

She was very active in the Odd Fellow Lodge, serving as an officer many years. She was also a member of the Order of Eastern Star.

Her hair was grey before she was thirty years old.

SARAH (SALLIE MARIE) ANDREWS (9)
b. Claremont, N.H., July 2,1801-d.West Brookfield, Ohio, Mar. 22, 1852.

Married
Oct. 8, 1826, John Godfrey Cook (8).

Sarah, or Sallie Marie, was small of stature and had red hair. Her accent was decidedly Scotch, so probably her father was Scotland born. She must have been some girl, otherwise John Godfrey would never have followed her to Canada to marry her.

Her seven children and their descendants are given on pages 14, 15, 16.

BACON
and
COLLATERAL LINEAGES

75-76

General notes on various early members of the Bacon family show that the name originated from the words, "baccen or buccen," meaning a "beech tree." Some of the earlier members included:

William Bacon, who in 1082, endowed the Abbey of the Holy Trinity at Caen. He was known as the Lord of Molai.

Roger Bacon (b.1214), sometimes called Roger of the Black Art, because he wrote many scientific and philosophical books and was imprisoned because of them.

John Bacon, called Baconthorp, a learned monk who became famous as the "Resolute Doctor."

Sir Micholas Bacon, who in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was keeper of the Great Seal. His son, Sir Francis Bacon, was appointed Keeper of the Seal, 1617, and was afterward made Lord High Chancellor of England.

Nathaniel Bacon emigrated from England to Virginia, and was the leader of Bacon's Rebellion.

* * * * * * *

MICHAEL BACON (768)
bap. Winston, Co. Suffolk, Eng., Dec. 6, 1579-d. Apr. 18, 1648.

He was the son of Michael and Elizabeth (Wylie) Bacon, of Co. Suffolk. He evidently went to Ireland, as he is said to have come from Ireland, in the "Anne," with his wife and four children. He was at Dedham, Mass., in 1633, where his name appears as one of the signers of the Dedham Agreement. He returned to England, but came back to Dedham in 1640, and was granted the right to become an inhabitant there.

JEANNETTE SOUTHWORTH BACON (3)
b. Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8, 1870 or 71.
Called Nettie.

She was educated in the Chicago Public Schools. After graduating from high school, she became a teacher at the Alcott School, where she taught until her marriage. Endowed with executive ability of a high degree, she has taken much interest in public work and has served as judge of election for several years. She has also been actively interested in various women's organizations, and has served as auditor and treasurer for the Lakeview Musical Club, as treasurer for the Vocational League of Chicago, and the Ladies Aid Society of the Unity Church, of which she has been a member for many years. She is also a member of the Society of New England Women, the Daughters of the American Revolution (national number, 183,664), the Chicago and Lakeview Woman's clubs.

During the World War I, she led her district in the selling of Liberty Bonds and so won a German helmet. In fact, both Mr. and Mrs. Cook were honorably mentioned by the United States Government for work during the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives. Mrs. Cook also had charge of the Liberty Loan booth at the Boston Store during that war.

As a note on her character, it should be said that she is much loved by all who know her, and that although she is very strict about the small things in life, she is most generous in the big things.

Married
Aug. 21, 1900, William Grant Cook (2).

CAPT. MYLES STANDISH (876)
b. 1586-d.1656

A passenger on the "Mayflower," with his wife, Rose. His signiture stands in the sixth place among the signers of the Mayflower Compact. His place in history is well marked and many interesting books have been published on the era in which he lived, all of which give full accounts of his many services to the Colony. It would probably be interesting to note here, however, that he was the captain and military leader in Plymouth Colony in 1621, and in 1649 he was general-in-chief of all the military companies. He also served as assistant from 1631 to 1650. Then for six years he was treasurer of the Colony.

and

In this section, the letter L has been used as a prefix to the ancestral number in order to distinguish between the Bacon and Laflin descendants in the Cook family. The system is, however, the same.

The tradition has always persisted in the family that John Laughlin was a gardner employed by a titled family in County Clare, Ireland. While employed there, he met and fell in love with Margaret Kenny, a daughter of this family. They finally ran away together and came to America. She was, of course, disowned by her family.

* * * * * * *

JOHN LAUGHLIN (L12)
b. Co. Clare, Ire., 1811-d. Apr. 8, 1847, aged 36.

1-Joseph, who died on the Expedition to Canada.
2-John (below).

* * * * * * * *

JOHN DANIELS (L56)
b. Dec. 11, 1755-d. Feb. 8, 1833

Because both of his parents had died before he was fourteen years old, he was "bound out." The man to whom he was bound died before his period of service had expired. Because the widow starved and abused him, he fled to Boston, and arrived there just at the time of the Boston Tea Riots.

His record in the Revolutionary War says he enlisted from Plainfield, N.H., and that he served under Capt. Peters in Col. Reed's Regiment, and was present at the Battle of Bunker Hill. He was honorably discharged, and paid in the worthless Continental money, but later he drew a pension.

After the war he went to Chesterfield, N.H. His entire property consisted of a dog, an axe and a gun. This was quickly diminished, as the first tree he felled killed his dog.

However, he soon raised a house and cleared a piece of ground. Then he married and raised a family. In 1803, he moved his family to Plainfield, N.H., where he accumulated what was considered at that time a handsome property.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

The sources throughout this book have been referred to by the reference or catalogue number used by Newberry Library at Chicago, where the compilation of this material was completed. This was done to conserve space and to prevent the needless repetition of source references.

The list is arranged according to alphabetical numerical order so that the reader may secure the full title of any source book from which he may care to secure substantiation, or perhaps a more full account of any item or family mentioned. Many of these source books are available in other libraries.
